PASTORS ATTENDING RED OAK BICENTENNIAL

Pictured above are, front row, left to right, Rev. and Mrs. Edgar S. Price, Mrs. Keith B. Whitehead, and Mrs. R. T. Smith and Rev. Smith; back row, left to right, Rev. and Mrs. Lewis Garrett and Rev. and Mrs. James Williams.

Rev. Price served as pastor of Red Oak from 1952 to 1955; Rev. Garrett was pastor from 1959 to 1961; Rev. Keith Whitehead (deceased) was pastor from 1961 to 1967; Rev. Smith was interim pastor from 1967 to 1968; and Rev. Williams was the evangelist for the revival services October 4 to October 8.

The Pastor Speaks

"And be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed".

Break through the Walls of Conformity. Multitudes are conformed to this world. They are under the pressures that reduce them to average personalities. Finally they accept this conformity to the average as their standard of life. Christ will have none of this for us. "Be ye perfect as your Father in heaven is perfect." This the Christian norm. "Be not conformed, but be transofrmed." There are breaches in the wall of conformity. Enter them and break through to the life of spiritual ideals and everlasting attainment. Break through the Barriers of Prejudice. We all have them. Some of their origins we well know. They need to be honestly and fearlessly faced. There are often enervating. They inhibit clear thinking and efficient action. The man of prejudice who refuses to give freedom to others reduces his own. Count on Christ to help you break through these barriers. Break through the prison walls of fear. Surely Christ opens the doors of this prison. Rush through into the glorious freedom of the Kingdom of God. "Fear not", said Jesus, it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom". Many a man has found Christ the door of escape from the imprisonment of fear. Break through the Bondage of sin. The old figure of speech still holds. Sin is bondage. Ours is a Gospel of the Breach. Christ's forgiveness with his restoration is the breach. His life and his death and his resurrection are for the loosening of these bonds. Sin, with its vicious effects in a bad conscience, guilt and enslaving habit. From these Christ sets you free. The vilest sinner can break through.

COMMENTS BY HERBERT C. BRADSHAW

The New Life in Christ

Scripture: Romans 6

If anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation. 2 Cor. 5:17

The emphasis which the Scriptures and Christian theology give to man's inability to save himself, to make himself righteous in God's sight and to initiate reconciliation with God can understandably lead to the view that man has no obligation beyond accepting God's gifts of slavation, justification and reconciliation. Paul realized the problem. Perhaps it arose as he thought on the matter. Perhaps someone raised it with him - - a believer seeking more light, an adversary who believed that man can do something to save himself. At any rate, he answered the question in his letter to the Romans.

Then, as now, there are those who like to enjoy the benefits of salvation and still live as they please. Some mistakenly interpret the Christian doctrine of freedom as license to sin. If God's grace is abundant, as it is, and nothing man does saves him, why should not man, relying of God's forgiveness, which knows no limit, continue to do as he pleases and live in sin? Paul put it, Are we to continue in sin that grace may abound?" Then he proceeds to explain his positive answer, "By no means!"

Christ's death introduced a new situation for mankind. God provided a way of redemption for man from sin. The consequence of sin is death. The result of redemption is eternal life. To take advantage of God's gift of salvation and justification and reconciliation, man must accept it in faith. There is nothing strange about this. To enjoy the benefits of a material gift, money or goods, or a gift, which is not material, friendship, for example, one has to accept it. If a person refuses a gift, he receives no benefit or advantage from it.

Acceptance of God's gift of salvation, justification and reconciliation means the beginning of a new life for the individual who accepts it. This beginning of a new life the theologian calls regeneration or the new birth. Paul draws the analogy of this spiritual experience from physical life, death, burial and resurrection. Who accepts God's gift of redemption dies to his old life of sin and disobedience to God and is raised from this death into a new life of commitment and obedience to God. In His death, Christ gave up His mortal body and was raised in an immortal body. In accepting God's gift of salvation and the credit of Christ's righteousness and entering into reconciliation with God, the believer dies to his old sinful life and is raised into a new spiritual life which is the beginning of eternal life. "So you must consider yourselves dead to sin and alive to God in Christ Jesus," Paul wrote. It may be added that to accept salvation and continue to live in sin in anticipation of God's forgiveness is to tempt God.

Despite Paul's answer, the problem continues. Those who fail to realize the full significance of salvation's gift of new life or have a superficial idea of God's relationship to man still argue that God's initiative and accomplishment relieve man of responsibility. John Witherspoon, the great 18th century peacher, educator and philospher, answered the question by saying that "the belief and acceptance of justificaiton by the grace of God through the imputed righteousness of Christ makes men greater lovers of purity and holiness and fills them with a greater abhorrence of sin."

The realization that God has forgiven one's sins should inspire a love of and commitment to God which makes the forgiven want to do God's work and will in the future. True repentance is accompanied by a change of heart. The redeemed individual has died to self and sin and in a new life lives to God.

Paul is clear on this matter. When a person is a slave to sin, he has no obligation to righteousness. But he must remember that slavery to sin results in death. There is a different result for those who accept freedom from slavery to sin and become slaves to God: "The return you get in sanctification," which means being set apart to God's service, and it leads to eternal life. New life in Christ means letting God's will rule one's life rather than one's own will. In doing so, he becomes a new creature and enters upon eternal life in fellowship with God.

Bike-A-Thon A Success!

The good Lord blessed us in many ways Sunday for our annual Bike-A-Thon - lovely fall day, many willing workers and riders, and plenty of cold drinks and cookies.

Over $3,000.00 was pledged by generous sponsors throughout the county to go directly to the American Cancer Society.

I wish to thank everyone who worked so hard, especially Lisa Dickerson, Janet Noble, Millie Trent, Beck Hudson, Mary Alma Hudson, Marian and Sonny Harwood, June Chenault Norma Chuchek, Brod Pack and all the bike riders. Thanks also to those who donated cookies: Mr. Glenn Thomas, Pepsi Cola Company, who donated all the drinks; Mr. Frank Sweet, coordinator of county 4-H and check-point workers Edith Scruggs, Carolyn Coleman, and Gwen King and the county police department.

A special thanks to the Appomattox County Rescue Squad who functioned so nobly in several mishaps - you have done so much for the people of this county.

The Appomattox County Unit of the American Cancer Society expresses much appreciation for all who helped to make this event the success that it was.

MEMORIAL REGISTER DEDICATED AT ELON BAPTIST CHURCH

Elon Baptist Church dedicated their newly constructed memorial register Sunday in memory of Brother Frank M. Irving.

Mr. Irving became a member of Elon in 1906. In 1931 he was elected to the Board of Directors where he served faithfully until 1970 when he was named honorary deacon. He was one of the first honorary deacons at Elon.

John Hix, Chairman of the Board of Deacons, accepted the memorial register on behalf of the church. He said, "It is appropriate that Brother Irving be memorialized by the beautiful register which now bears steady witness near the church, because steadfastness was one of the many qualities which he so strongly exemplified."

Also participating in the dedication service was Pastor Douglas Hager.

The register was given by Mrs. Frank Irving.
